Hello, my name is Carrie Kahler. I have an eight year old daughter Claire who is suffering from end stage cancer (neuroblastoma). A couple weeks ago Claire asked me if I could "find" Miss Kimberly for her. I told her I would do my best but made no promises. Well, to be honest with all the chaos and excitement that ensued with Claire coming home from the hospital with hospice. I forgot. However Claire reminded me earlier today. I asked Claire why it was so important for me to find Miss Kimberly for her she said, "Mommy Miss Kimberly deserves to know how much she has helped me. She left fingerprints on my heart." After hearing that I decided I would do whatever I could to let Kimberly know about Claire.

Please know we are not wanting or asking for anything from you or Kimberly. Claire is going to be with Jesus very soon. Nothing on this earth is going to save her from that.

Claire has written a very sweet letter for Kimberly and would like her to read it before she passes away. I don't know if that is possible. I was hoping to email Claire's letter to you and maybe you could forward it to Kimberly. Claire knows Kimberly from a movie "The Christmas Shoes".

She doesn't know who she is married to or that she has made other movies. I promise we want nothing. If you cannot forward Claire's letter can you pass along this message from her to Kimberly?

"Miss Kimberly thank you for making my heart so happy. You have a very pretty heart. Lots of grown ups can't see it but I can.

I will never forget how you made me feel the first time I saw your movie. You made me feel so brave and I'm not scared to die because you helped me be brave. I love you.
Love, Claire."
